HONORARY DEGREE

DOCTOR OF LAWS

JOHN RICHARD FULP, JR.

John R. Fulp, Jr., philanthropist and business executive, is well-known for his commitment to and support of higher education in South Carolina and particularly at Clemson University.

He is chairman of the Board of Directors of the prestigious Abney Foundation which has supported a number of institutions of higher education. The Foundation's financial support of Clemson's academic programs has been especially generous through the years and has greatly enhanced the quality of teaching and research.

The Foundation also has supported Clemson's scholarship fund, making it possible for many Clemson students to receive financial assistance as Abney Scholars.

In 1981 a $1 million gift from the Abney Foundation endowed the Abney Chair of Free Enterprise in the College of Commerce and Industry, making it possible for Clemson to bring an economics scholar of national reputation to campus. The interaction of this scholar with junior faculty has significantly increased the quality of the entire economics faculty. Since 1974 the Foundation has given the University a total of $2 million.

Gifts from the Foundation also have made possible the construction of much-needed facilities at Anderson College and the Connie Maxwell Children's Home at Greenwood.

Mr. Fulp was born at Greenwood and attended Boys' High School in Anderson. A man of many talents and interests, he is an accomplished helicopter pilot and at one time was rated in the top twenty drivers in the world in Formula I racing. His numerous business associations include the presidency of Chem-Tex, Inc., Paragon Products, Inc., Vanguard Industries, Inc., and Diamond F Aviation, Inc. He also is president of the Fulp Foundation.

Mr. Fulp formerly was president and director of Abney Mills, former vice president and director of Brandon Sales, Inc., and Brandon Stores, Inc. He is the former executive vice president, assistant treasurer and director of Toxaway Corp., and former vice president, treasurer and director of Textile Bonded Storage.

He is a former director of Farmers Loan & Trust Co., former vice president, secretary and director of S. C. Cotton, Inc., former president and director of Fabric Sales, Inc., former president and director of Woodward, Baldwin & Co., and former member of the Board of Directors of Anderson Savings & Loan Association and Bankers Trust of South Carolina.

It is a special privilege to honor this good friend of higher education and of Clemson University and to express our most sincere appreciation for all that he has meant to higher education's well-being and continued advancement.

Clemson is proud to present this honorary doctoral degree to John R. Fulp, Jr.

HONORARY DEGREE
DOCTOR OF HUMANITIES
HARLAN EWART McCLURE

No name has been more closely identified with the growth and advancement of higher education in architecture and the related professions in South Carolina for three decades than that of Harlan McClure. He is affectionately called the father of South Carolina architects.

Mr. McClure served as Clemson's first dean of architecture for 25 years. He retired from that post in 1984 and continued to teach in the graduate program.

Thanks to his leadership and determination, architectural education at Clemson has become one of the prominent educational forces in architecture today, and the University is among the leading schools in the Southeast.

He has been a tremendous influence in bringing about higher standards of quality both in the teaching and practice of these professions. His contributions to the University, the professions of architecture, planning, building science, visual arts and history, and landscape architecture, as well as to the environment of South Carolina, have been many.

Professor McClure holds A.B. and Bachelor of Architecture degrees from George Washington University and the Master of Architecture degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He also attended the Royal Swedish Academy in Stockholm where he took graduate work in architecture and town planning and earned an architectural diploma in architecture and planning.

He was brought to South Carolina and Clemson University from Minneapolis in 1955 to build Clemson's program into a curriculum with national stature. He was, in effect, commissioned to be the architect of change in the status quo and to put new life into a lackluster situation.

He had had a distinguished tenure at the University of Minnesota and was a well-known practicing architect in Minneapolis. He joined Clemson as professor and head of the architectural faculty — an association which marked the beginning of a remarkable thirty-two year career of service to Clemson and the entire State.

On July 1, 1958 — three years after his arrival — an independent, accredited School of Architecture was established with Mr. McClure as its dean. Working with a fledgling department in the School of Engineering, he fashioned it into one of the premier schools in the country, with a design, building science, city and regional planning, and arts faculty that ranks among the nation's best. To support this reorganization, he led the establishment of the state-wide Clemson Architectural Foundation which supplements funds for special programs.

Through the years he has earned the abiding respect and admiration of his peers, as well as untold numbers of Clemson alumni whose personal and professional lives reflect the positive influence of his teaching and advice.

Professor McClure also saw the importance of expanding Clemson's public service role by involving architecture students in real-life development problems in the revitalization of South Carolina cities and towns.

Knowing the folly of resting too long on one's laurels, Dean McClure always looked for new ways to make Clemson's curriculum more innovative and meaningful for his students. In 1973 he looked overseas at the Mediterranean seaport of Genoa, Italy, to establish the Charles E. Daniel Center for Building Research and Urban Study, a program which has brought Clemson international recognition and influence.

When Dean McClure was named recipient of the national Distinguished Professor Award last year by the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture, the president of that organization said of him: "He has a long and distinguished career in architectural education. He has had a tremendous formative influence on the careers of nationally prominent architects and has sent a host of young graduates on to distinguished roles as teachers and heads or deans of schools."

Clemson history indeed has proven him to be a master builder.

It is a special privilege to honor Dean Harlan McClure with the presentation of this honorary doctoral degree and to express our most sincere appreciation for all that he has done for Clemson and the people of our state. We hold him and his achievements in the highest regard.

The University Regalia

The University mace is the symbolic representation of the whole of Clemson University and must be present at any convocation where the University, through its delegated members, is acting officially. At any official convocation such as commencement, the University Marshal, carrying the mace, precedes the President into the assembly. The mace rests before the President's chair or speaker's stand throughout the ceremony, and its removal from the assembly at the close of a convocation is symbolic of the official withdrawal of the University and, thus, the close of the proceedings.

The decorative design of Clemson's mace is derived from the ceremonial maces carried by heads of state and church in the Middle Ages. Its basic club-like shape, however, is much more ancient, probably going back to man's pre-history. It is made of walnut wood and silver, with the seal of the University in gold and the University colors represented by insets of cornelian (orange) and amethyst (purple). Amethyst is also the state stone of South Carolina.

The Presidential chain and seal is symbolic of the authority vested in the office of president by the governing body of the University. Only the University President may wear it, and while wearing it he speaks for the whole body of the institution. Clemson's chain and seal are made of silver and gold, and cornelian and amethyst.

The batons of the college marshals also descend from medieval "staffs of office" which were carried by the senior members of departments of state or church. They display the seal of the University and the symbolic color of the discipline to which the college belongs. Clemson's batons are made of walnut wood and silver with the various disciplines inset with enamel.

The University regalia were designed and executed by Mr. Robert Ebendorf. Mr. Ebendorf is twice winner of the Tiffany Award and one of the most acclaimed goldsmiths of our era. The enamel plaques for the batons were executed by the late Professor Marshall C. Bell, and the lapidary work was executed by the late Mr. C. C. Wilson of Clemson University.

Historical Statement

Clemson University is named for Thomas Green Clemson (1807-1888), who left the bulk of his estate to the State of South Carolina for the founding of the institution.

Thomas Clemson was born in Philadelphia in 1807 and educated at the Royal School of Mines in Paris (1828-1832). His early profession was that of a mining engineer; but circumstances diverted his interests into politics and the life of a southern planter, and he soon became an enthusiastic advocate of scientific agriculture. He had a career as a diplomat (charge d'affairs to Belgium, 1844-1852) and served as the first Superintendent of Agricultural Affairs in Washington (1860). As a scientist he published numerous articles in the fields of mining, chemistry, and agriculture. His varied activities included his assistance in the founding of the Maryland Agricultural College, his support of the Morrill Act, his leadership in South Carolina after the Civil War, and his part in founding Clemson University.

Thomas Clemson was the son-in-law of South Carolina's John C. Calhoun, a political figure of national importance during the first half of the nineteenth century. Mr. Calhoun's home, Fort Hill, is preserved on the Clemson Campus as a national shrine.

The academic program at Clemson College began in 1893 with an enrollment of 446. The first "college prospectus" announced only two four-year curricula, supplemented by two two-year preparatory courses. Today the University has ten major academic units. These are the College of Agricultural Sciences, the College of Architecture, the College of Commerce and Industry, the College of Education, the College of Engineering, the College of Forest and Recreation Resources, the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Nursing, the College of Sciences, and the Graduate School.

The institution is an accredited member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools; various curricula are accredited by the National Architectural Accrediting Board, National League for Nursing, Society of American Foresters, American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, and National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

Clemson is a land-grant institution. As such, it is engaged not only in its primary academic program, but does extensive research at the main campus and at five agricultural experiment stations located in the State. The University is also heavily committed to a varied program of public service, including the work of agricultural extension which has professional personnel located in each of the State's counties.

CLEMSON ALMA MATER

A. C. Corcoran, '19

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness,

Where the Tigers play;

Here the sons of dear old Clemson

Reign supreme alway.

Chorus

Dear old Clemson, we will triumph

And with all our might,

That the Tiger's roar may echo

O'er the mountain height.

We will dream of great conquests,

For our past is grand,

And her sons have fought and conquered

Every foreign land.

Where the mountains smile in grandeur

O'er the hill and dale.

Here the Tigers lair is nestling

Swept by storm and gale.

We are brothers strong in manhood,

For we work and strive;

And our alma mater reigneth

Ever in our lives.
